Hybrid Bodies exposition jusqu'au 15 mars, espace C

En 2010, les scientifiques Heather Ross, Susan Abbey, Enza De Luca, Oliver E. Mauthner, Patricia McKeever, Magrit Shildrick et Jennifer Poole ont publié un essai révolutionnaire et controversé. Cette équipe de recherche transdisciplinaire, le PITH (Process of Incorporating a Transplanted Heart), a été le fer de lance d'une investigation sur les effets émotionnels et psychologiques, peu étudiés, de la greffe cardiaque.

Visant à faire connaître au public cette situation, l'équipe a invité quatre artistes – Ingrid Bachmann, Andrew Carnie, Catherine Richards et Alexa Wright – à puiser dans les données de recherche du PITH dans le but de créer de nouvelles œuvres explorant divers aspects de ce phénomène complexe : intercorporité, communauté, mythologie et symbolisme entourant le cœur. ## Critique de livre

Smith, G. (2014) Benevolence. Bioethical Inquiry, 1-3.

This ironically titled novel depicts the ambiguity and ambivalence of making and receiving gifts. One of the main characters is a transplant psychiatrist who assesses potential living kidney donors. This closely observed novel provides a valuable insight into the thoughts and feelings that therapists can have whilst with their patients/clients and of the consequences of not reflecting on them in supervision. It also raises to consciousness the many ethical issues of altruistic organ donation.
